New Tales of the Pearl River Delta

The Pearl River Delta is a melting pot of foreign influence and traditional Chinese culture and is one of China's major centres for trade. Considered the powerhouse of the Chinese economy; it contains three of the country's most influential cities in Hong Kong, Guangzhou and Macau.

The Pearl River Delta has a rich history that dates all the way back to the Maritime Silk Road and the tea clippers. Immersed with the culture and tradition of past dynasties, its tantalizing history is seen in the shadows of modern-day skyscrapers.

Today the eleven cities along the Pearl River Delta are slowly morphing into a seamless megalopolis. The region is evolving from simply being the world's low-cost factory to an increasing innovative, knowledge-driven manufacturing hub.
